SEVERE WIND STORM MONDAY

Beaver county was visited by a terrible wind storm last Monday. Reports from Balko are to the effect that the ground there was white with snow. Some snow and sleet accompanied the gale here but the wind and severe cold were the most objective of the visitation. So far as we can learn no serious damage was done but the telephone company have had to reset many of their poles and minor damage was done to windmills, etc.

However, we feel lucky to escape serious damage as was experienced in other places. Beaver is usually rather fortunate in such cases for, nestled down in the valley, protected by the sand hills, we ordinarily come out victors in our battles with the elements.

EASTER

The meaning of Easter and its message of joy, the revival of hope and the buoyant renewal of our aspiration come to an old and tired world this morning and pervade our lives even as the springtide floods and fills the meadows with her everlasting miracle.

By an irresistible human impulse, we seek out our finest and most fashionable raiment, and that impulse is parallel to the natural processes in the world about us. If the earth can put off her drab habiliments of winter and forget the somber, sunless hours, so can the children of the earth. In every life today there may be a resurrection from the dead. In every life old things may be discarded. He has not caught the spirit of the festal celebration who is stirred to a renewal and is not moved to forsake the darkness and give welcome to the light.

It is more than a church festival. Believer and unbeliever together share the influences of the day. In each of us, whatever creed we formally profess, there dwells the feeling that the day betokens. It is the assurance that life is worth the living and that love can never lose its own. We stand today not at the brink of a tomb but on the threshold of this eternal life and of this love immortal.
